Utah Council of Women Listens to Report From Kansas Delegate.

YEAR'S WORK IS REVIEWED

RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE USED AT POLLS IN UTAH.

The Utah Council of Women, which constitutes the state suffrage society, and is a sub-organization of the National Women's Suffrage association, was addressed by Mrs. Emma Tanner Wood of Topeka, Kan., delegate to the recent International Prison convention at Seattle, at the regular meeting of the council in the office of the Women's Exponent yesterday afternoon. The report of the year's work in Utah was also read and passed upon, and will be forwarded to the national association. Reports of Mrs. F. S. Richards, Utah delegate to the International Council of Women's Content of the International Council of Women's Exponent years and the Women's Exponent years and the International Council of Women's Exponent years and the Year's work in Utah was also read and passed upon, and will be forwarded to the national association. of Women at Ontario, and to the interna-tional charities and corrections conven-tion at Buffalo, were also received and

Mrs. Wood spoke informally on the evils of prison systems as they were treated at the recent convention in Seattle. She told of the need of more adequate legislation by which criminal blame could be rightly placed. Often the parents or guardians are directly to blame for the criminal tendencies of the younger set of criminals, she said, and the need of laws to reach these is urgent.

Mrs. Wood has confined her attentions along these lines to the solving of juvenile court problems. She was influential in having several juvenile laws passed by the Kansas legislature, notably that to prevent traveling hypnotists from hypno-tizing school children and using them on the stage or in other demonstrations.

Physiculture.

In her address she told of the work being started in many large penal insti-tutions by which the convict, before be-ing turned out at the expiration of his term, was put through courses of physical culture to counteract the usual effect of imprisonment on his health.

While in Salt Lake Mrs. Wood will visit the local juvenile court, the state penitentiary, the city jail, and will also take a trip to Ogden to visit the State Industrial school. She will address the inmates at each place.

The annual report of the Utah Council of Women shows a remarkable amount of work accomplished along the lines laid down by the national association. In its down by the national association. In its official capacity the council influenced the city council to such a degree as to prevent the proposed granting of a franchise to outside capital by which the valuable hot springs to the north of the city were to have passed into the hands of individuals for a period of fifty years. The council is now working to create public sentiment in favor of the building of civic bath houses on the site of the hot springs. Another move of note was that by which throughout the country.

Mrs. F. S. Richards' reports on her visit to the quinquennial convention of the International Council of Women at Toronto as delegate from Utah, and the Buffalo convention of the International Charities and Corrections association, were interesting. Mrs. Richards took an active part at both conventions.

for this and other reasons the city should bear half of the expense of maintenance. During the many years since the territorial legislature in 1872 established the line of the city on the west bank of the river the city has paid hundreds of dollars with the county in keeping the bridge in shape for traffic.

It is now up to the county to see whether the old plan will be maintained, and part at both conventions.
